Healthy Environments and Relationships that Support (HEARTS): A Multi-systemic Collective Response to Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) The Albany, NY MARC Project

Network Description

- MARC Project led by University at Albany and La Salle School
- Addressing ACEs and building resilience in the state capital region area, including: Albany, Schenectady, Rensselaer, Schoharie, Saratoga
- Social service agencies serving as training, capacity building and systems change agents
- Impacting social service, health, education, and law enforcement sectors
- State-wide policy partnerships
- Indigenous community leaders, neighborhood peer supports
- Grassroots social movement aceresponse

transforming care. empowering people.

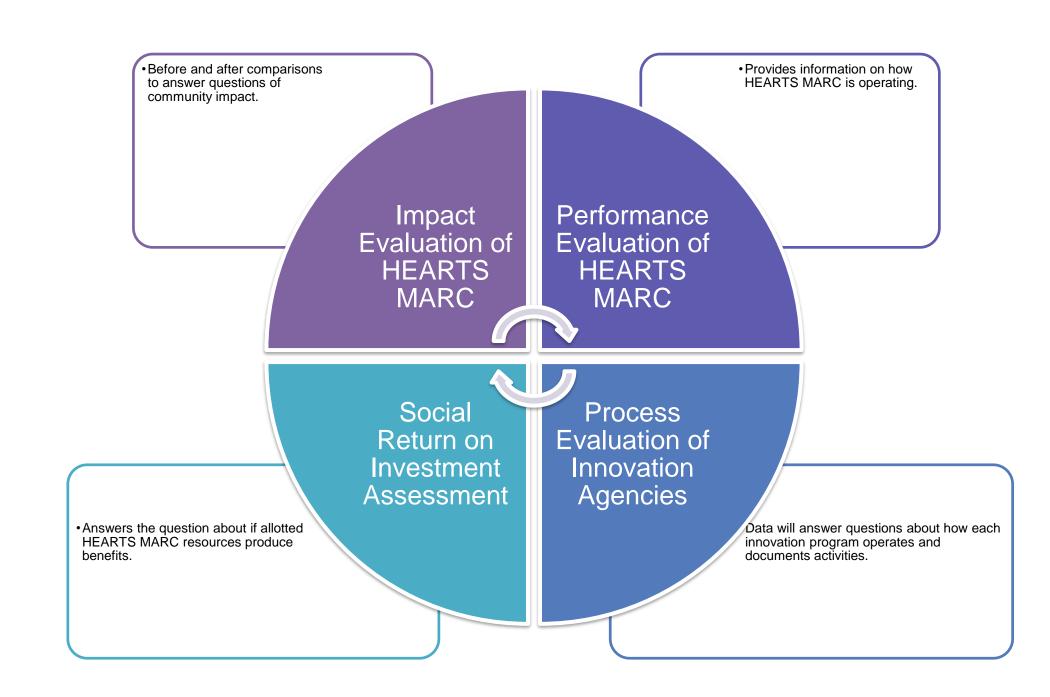

HEARTS/MARC

HEARTS/MARC aims to reduce ACEs and build resilience by supporting ACE-informed services, systems, and community wide impact through:

- Cross-sector collaboration
- Community capacity-building
- Social and policy advocacy
- Workforce development
- ACE/trauma-informed programs
- Evidence-supported interventions and emerging practices
- Grassroots level-engagement with indigenous leaders as policy entrepreneurs

How We Developed

- ACE Think Tank and Action Team meetings launched at UAlbany in 2007
- Promoted ACE-related information-sharing and networking for community members and agency leaders
- While ACE awareness increased, strong relationships forged and evolved over time

MARC Objectives

- Build an effective ACE resilience movement by expanding ACE screening, ACEinformed services, sector-specific networks beyond the region, new sector partnerships
- Create a learning and innovation exchange community through training and collaboration opportunities, data-based improvement indices, and continuous quality improvement with each partner agency
- Engage policy leaders through meetings and training, advance policy objectives through media outreach, and support policy entrepreneurs

Our Approach: Restorative Integral Support

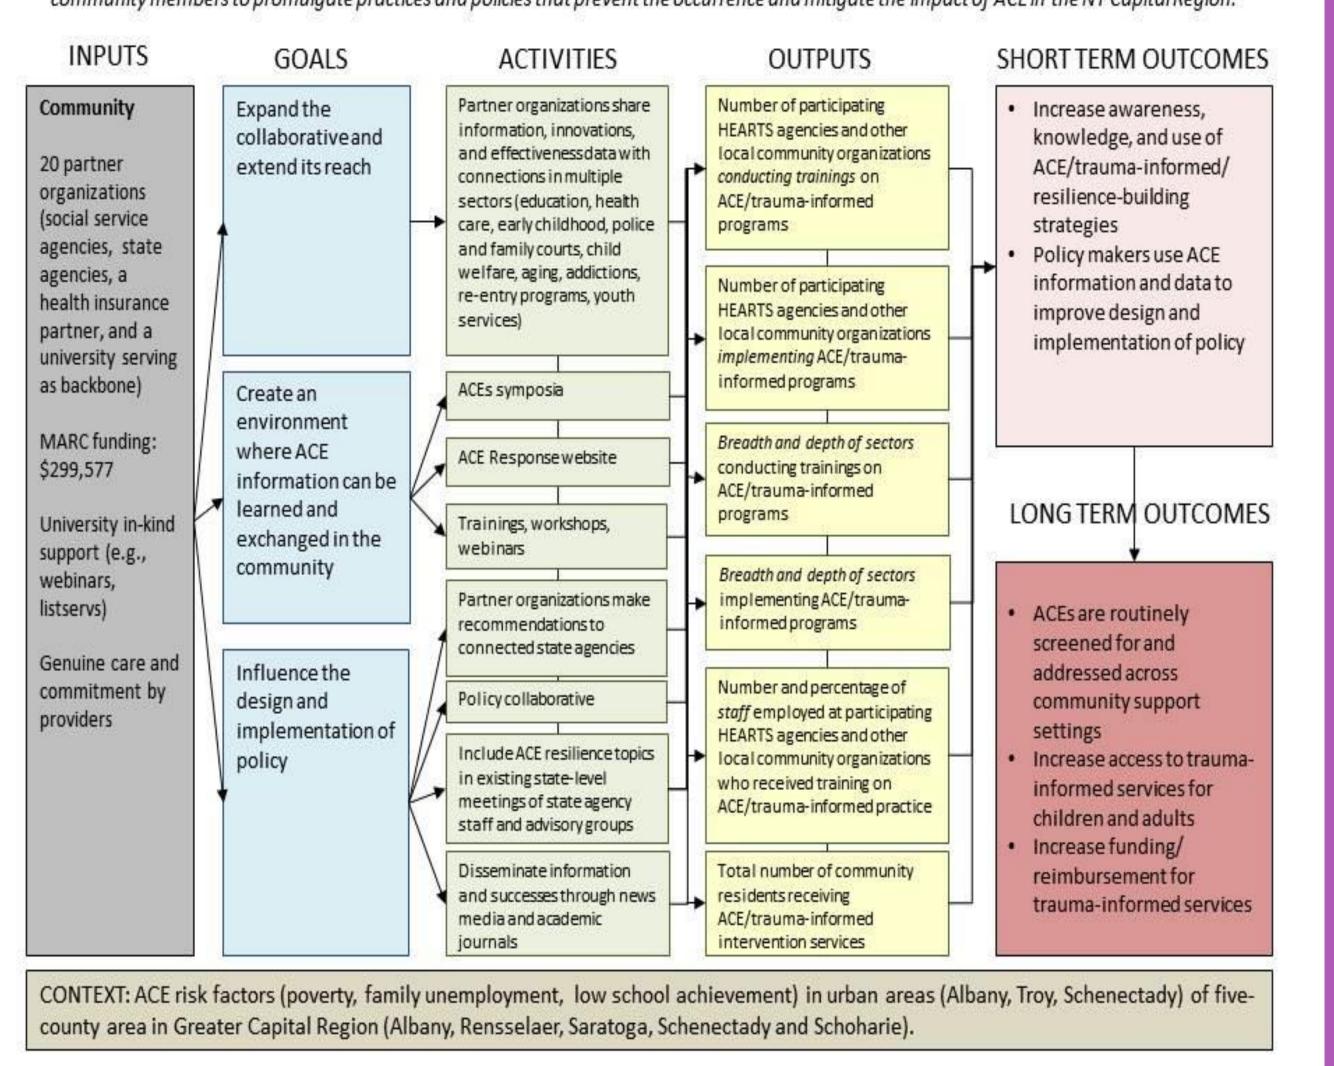

Restorative Integral Support (RIS): A comprehensive model for a whole person/whole agency/ whole systems/ whole community approach.

- Guides multi-faceted ACE response: leadership, policy change, integrated services, culture of health
- Emphasizes importance of social support for resilience and recovery, including provider self care.

HEARTS/MARC Activities

GOAL: The HEARTS Initiative for ACE Response: Capital Region of NY seeks to raise awareness of ACE and mobilize professionals, paraprofessionals, and community members to promulgate practices and policies that prevent the occurrence and mitigate the impact of ACE in the NY Capital Region.

Key Learnings

Mobilize indigenous leaders

Move from training to organizational development

Move from agency to grassroots community

Increase engagement with policy makers

development

Assess multi-sector impact for saturation effect

Prepare to steward a social movement

Developments

- NYS Council on Children & Families partnership for state agency collaboration and cross-system policy framework development
- Dissemination: e.g. Disability Services Toolkit:
 http://marc.healthfederation.org/albanycapital-region-ny/trauma-informed-toolkit-providers-field-intellectual-developmental
- Engaged county and city officials with new policy learning communities in development
- Information sharing and support for indigenous neighborhood leaders, e.g. Policy Entrepreneurs

Desired Outcomes

Increase awareness,

Increased ACE awareness knowledge, and use of strategies by agency staff Policy makers and organizational leaders to make policy/systems change decisions

ACEs are increasingly screened for and addressed across organizations increasingly use ACE data knowledge, and use of ACE/trauma-informed/resilience-building strategies

Policy makers use ACE information and data to improve design and implementation of policy

ACEs are routinely screened for and addressed across community support settings

Increase access to

for children and adults Increase funding/reimbursement

trauma-informed services

funding/reimbursemen for trauma-informed services

Fewer ACEs over time

Contact Information

Heather Larkin, PhD and Katharine Briar-Lawson, PhD University at Albany, State University of New York · Phone (518) 442-3300

Dave Wallace, LCSW
La Salle School · Phone (581) 242-4731